Thursday night burglars were abroad at Dover. Four men, about 9:30 o'clock, broke into the blacksmith shop at that place, secured some tools, and then went for the Postoffice in great haste, but got nothing. They then turned their attention to The Dover News office, breaking in the door and twisting the combination lock of the safe in the trying several other places and not finding anything, they proceeded on their way up the O. & N. Railway track.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT.

Bright's Disease, Kidney and Bladder Troubles Steal in Upon Us and Are Firmly Settled Before We Know It.

Kidney and bladder diseases are notably insidious. They give but few outward manifestations before they are firmly settled and either hard to relieve or impossible to cure.

Hence, before the deadliest of all diseases, it behooves every man and woman of sense to heed the very earliest and slightest symptoms.

And to crush and exterminate them at a time when it is both possible and easy to do so. A man who could easily struggle alone a cub just born would be quickly torn to pieces by the same animal when it had reached its maturity.

But what are the symptoms of kidney disease? Kidney disease has no exact and specific symptoms. In its early stages it is liable to be mistaken for or confounded with a thousand trifling ailments.

A little headache, pain, weight, soreness or aching in the back, some dyspepsia, trifling nausea or dizziness, restless sleep, dullness of the mind, lack of snap, vigor and activity of the muscles, lack of mental clearness, a dry harsh skin and irregular action of the bowels, high colored, scanty urine, very pale abundant urine, frequent calls to make water; although these latter symptoms are more often due to bladder disease.

But all cases are not alike. Some persons have all these symptoms; others have but one or two.

No matter how few or how slight, they ought to have immediate attention.

Dr. Hobb's Spargus Kidney Pills nip these symptoms in the bud.

Dr. Hobb's Spargus Kidney Pills nip and strengthen the kidneys and bladder.

Dr. Hobb's Spargus Pills filter out of the blood all poisons and impurities.

Maluria is due to a disease germ. They filter that out and thus cure maluria.

Rheumatism is due to uric acid in the blood.

They filter that out and thus cure rheumatism.

Loss of exercise, imperfect digestion, breaking down of the system, indigestion, life, worry and nervous strain, all result in the clogging of the blood with impurities.

These impurities must be cast out or sickness will result.

Dr. Hobb's Spargus Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active and enable them to cast out their work and do it thoroughly and well.

They are a specific in bladder prostatic and urethral diseases.

Dr. Hobb's Spargus Kidney Pills are endorsed by the best physicians and sold by druggists at 50 cents.

A valuable book mailed free. Address: Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago or San Francisco.

The creditors of the Padan Bros. Shoe Company, Portsmouth, refuse to accept any settlement of less than 50 cents on the dollar.

Rev. J. B. Driney, formerly Pastor of the Christian Church in this city, but now of Moberly, Mo., has been tendered a call to the First Presbyterian Church, London, Eng., but because of the poor health of his wife, and at the urgent request of his congregation, he will not accept.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The end of the long debate in the senate on the house bond bill with the finance committee's free coinage substitute was reached Friday when a unanimous agreement was made that after an evening session to be devoted to clearing off belated speeches a recess shall be taken till 11 o'clock Saturday morning and that, after Mr. Morrill (rep., Vt.) shall have been heard, the question shall go on under the five-minute rule until two p. m., when the final vote is to be taken.

The two free speeches made on the subject Friday, Mr. Vilas (dem., Wis.) spoke for two hours and three-quarters in opposition both to the bill and substitute.

At 4 p. m. a recess was taken until 7:30.

When the senate resumed its session at 7:30 Mr. Pasco (dem., Fla.) resumed his speech and continued it to the end which was reached at 8:00.

Mr. Palmer (dem., Ill.) gave notice of an amendment declaring it to be the policy of the United States to maintain the parity between the gold and silver dollar of both gold and silver in the market and in the payment of debts; and it directs the secretary of the treasury to exercise the discretion vested in him so as to bring the gold to better advantage and promote the policy thus declared.

Mr. Caffery (dem., La.) then addressed the senate in opposition to the free coinage substitute.

The evening session lasted till ten p. m., when the recess was further extended to Saturday at 11 a. m.

The speakers in the evening were Senators Bates (dem., Tenn.) and Pasco (dem., Fla.) and White (dem., Cal.). Mr. Caffery opposed the free silver substitute. The other two senators advocated it.

If the mercury does not fall to the end or if it breaks into several small columns, the thermometer contains air and is inaccurate. If the mercury does not fall to the end or if it breaks into several small columns, the thermometer contains air and is inaccurate.

There is another interesting fact about thermometers. Nine persons out of ten think the mercurial column round, but that is not the case. The thread of mercury in thermometers is flat. If it were round the column could hardly be seen, for the opening of the tube is less than the finest thread. Some eight or ten years ago a Boston manufacturer introduced a scheme of coating the back of the tube with white sizing. That makes the column of mercury stand out clear and distinct.

Thermometers are cheaper and better than ever before. You can now get a heat meter for 25 cents, but a first-class instrument will cost you two dollars. A cheap instrument is like a cheap watch—it is not reliable. The best of this is that a perfect thermometer has a scale of its own. The cheap thermometer is made on guesswork. Hence you can see a difference of two, three or five degrees between thermometers in the same locality on the same day.

The most sensitive heat marker is the Crookes. It consists of four or five suspended on a steel pivot, rotating like a miniature wind vane, and the whole affair is inclosed in a glass tube from which the air has been exhausted. The light of a candle one or two feet away causes the arms to rotate. Quite as sensitive is the thermopile, which is used to detect the faint rays of heat transmitted from the moon and stars to this cold world.

ONLY A STONE WALL STOPS IT.

Little Animal That Makes a Remarkable Pilgrimage.

By far the most remarkable pilgrimage ever recorded among the lower animals was that witnessed in Norway, not once, but several times within this century, says the New York Mercury.

A party of fishermen upon one occasion were encamped on the borders of a small fjord, and were mending their nets when they observed a number of lemmings—a little animal that lives in the heaves—coming out of the wood that skirted the shore. At first, seeing the men, they ran back; then others appeared, and more and more until hundreds were upon the beach.

As the day passed the numbers continually increased until before night the entire beach was covered. The shore was followed by hawks and other predatory animals that feed upon the lemmings. They passed on into the water, swimming over it, scores being driven down by the wind, and the rest passing the opposite shore and moving on into the woods, impelled by the strange instinct.

It is said that nothing deters these pilgrims but a stone wall, which they cannot scale. Piles of grain and fodder they have been known to tunnel through, and the instinct seems to move ahead in a given line.

The fishes make remarkable pilgrimages from one shore to another, and in such vast bodies as to defy description.

APPLICATION OF A FABLE.

He Who Sheeps Clothes, But Preced to Be a Wolf in the Fold.

The story of the man who clothed himself in a lion's skin in order to get into a lion's den is the king of fables is well known, but the tale of the thief who got inside a sheep's skin to be better able to get into a shepherd's den is not so well known. It is told, says the London Telegraph.

Early one morning two policemen, who were on duty at the slaughter houses of Paris, were astonished to see a shepherd endeavoring to effect an entrance into the inclosure where creatures of his kind were stationed. But the officers' attention was recalled when they saw the hand protruded from beneath the stolen fleece. Their curiosity became intensified, and they carefully followed the sheep and animal, who stole into the pen which inclosed the real articles, and with great coolness chose the two largest and fattest of the flock.

Still observed by the watchful guardians of the law, this plagiarist of an ancient fable proceeded to kill and cut up his capture, and was on the point of making off with his booty, when he found himself in turn the spoil of the law, and was quickly marched off to the police station, where he gave a confession of his crime.

From his own account he made a good living out of his occupation by selling the meat to various butchers. For some time at least it is to be hoped that the animal at the slaughter will cease to be sent to an early death by the degradation of this latest wolf in sheep's clothing.

A Reporter's Abbreviation.

In a paper on "Some Humors of Parliamentary Reporting" in Matthias is the following: "There is a well-authenticated story current in the report of a gallery of a strange freak of a telegraph clerk in the transmission of the report of a parliamentary speech by Mr. Foster to a daily paper in Bradford. The subject of the speech was education, the word 'children' was frequently used, and for the sake of brevity the clerk substituted 'kids,' trusting that the alteration would be corrected by the operator at the other end of the wire. The message, however, was not only written, but printed just as it was transmitted. Imagine the faces of the right honorable gentleman's constituents when they read the next morning: 'You know of Wordsworth's profound saying: 'The kid is father to the man.'"

The Advertising Columns of THE LANCET speak for themselves. They show that people who know how to advertise know also when to advertise.

Says:

"I do the heaviest

advertising in full times.

The reason is, when people look most keenly for bargains and are anxious to know what things cost, and where they can save money.

I advertise particular things, give prices, and take as much pains with my announcements as I with my stock. One big dinner will keep up the reputation of the big house—but steady, good cooking does it. I never permit interest in my announcements to lag, and never make an issue in my chosen publications. After-thing has made my store one of the largest in the country."
